CF-5 MAKES ITS DEBUT IN TORONTO'S CNE

The CF-5, above, latest addition to Canada's armed forces air strength had its first public showing in Canada at the Canadian National Exhibition Monday and it was immediately apparent the aircraft had become the centre of attraction at the armed forces exhibit as some 1,000 persons saw it hourly. Now being built at Canadian 11, Montreal, 125 CF-5s will be built for Canadian forces over the next four years at a cost of about $400,000 each. Powered by two J85-15 jet engines, the plane has a top speed of 1,800 miles an hour, climbs at a rate of 35,000 feet a minute and has a combat altitude of more than 48,000 feet. It has a flight range of about 1,500 miles. It is also the only supersonic aircraft in North America that can operate from sod fields or unprepared runways. Like the one above, facilitating its tactical dispersal in forward areas for the close support of troops in combat.

Instant-Wed Draft Escapees Maybe Did It All For Naught

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The boys of U.S. selective service who got married last week hoping to escape the U.S. draft may, after all, end up doing a hitch.

Li Gen, Lewis B. Hershey, chief of the draft since the Second World War, said married but childless men will be called up as soon as the manpower pool of single 18-year-olds falls short of quotas. That could come as early as next spring, he said.

Addressing himself to the many men who plunged into the sea of matrimony to meet President Johnson's draft-deferral deadline last Thursday morning, Hershey said:

"I believe they'll discover they didn't lead any dead-end."

"I was amused. We'll get most of them—in four or five months."

Girl "Fainted And Saved Life" As Jasper Grizzly Attacks

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—A grizzly bear with three cubs seriously mauled a young Edmonton man Sunday but left his girl companion alone when she fainted.

Fred Sturdy, 19, of Edmonton, was in serious condition Monday night in Jasper Hospital. Diane Davidson of Sudbury, Ont., who was walking with Sturdy high in the Rocky Mountains was released from hospital after treatment for shock.

K. B. Mitchell, superintendent of Jasper National Park, said:

"It appears the two walked right into the bear in the darkness. The girl says the mother bear reared up right in front of them and her three cubs scattered."

The fact the fainter probably saved her life.

There have been instances in which bears left alone people who "played dead."

The attack occurred near Maligne Lake, a major tourist attraction, and 30 miles from Jasper town, 200 miles west of Edmonton.

Park officials said Miss Davidson's description of the grizzlies — 600 to 700 pounds in weight when full-grown—rather than the more common black bears.

A medical source said the youth suffered face and skull fractures, a nose fracture and lacerations to his scalp, chest and thigh. His face, an ear and his thigh muscles were torn.

Just As Many Drunks At Coast As If Beer Drought Wasn't On

VANCOUVER (CP)—The pubs are dry but there are just as many drunks as ever.

A brewery workers' strike that has shut off the beer taps here and in Victoria didn't produce relief for police picking up drunks in Vancouver.

A total of 187 were charged with intoxication and another 17 with impaired driving in Vancouver during the weekend—slightly more than normal.

And while the pubs are dry, they're not quiet. Many of the 128 that are closed in the Vancouver area are taking the opportunity to redecorate.

Walls are being washed, carpets cleaned and chairs recovered, the British Columbia Hotel Association said Monday.

In Victoria, meanwhile, Attorney-General Robert Bonner threatened licence suspension for cancellation for any hotel still open that is selling beer by the case over the counter for $4.20 a dozen.

Some persons said they had to pay this price, although no official complaints were made.

Normal counter-sale price in a beer parlor is $3.50, compared with the liquor store price of $2.52.

A case of beer delivered at the table, however, is $4.20.

No end to the strike was in sight.

A spokesman for the striking workers at six breweries and a beer delivery company said no fresh talks are scheduled.

The union is seeking a 10-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract. Present rates range from $2.50 to $3.10 an hour. The companies offered 28 cents over two years.

"U.S. Attempted To Bribe Me" Claims Singapore's Leader

SINGAPORE (CP)—Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew claimed today the U.S. government once offered him a $10,000,000 bribe to let the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency have information from a Singapore intelligence man. Lee said he rejected the offer.

The United States denied the charge.

Lee claimed the bribe was made through a presidential intermediary in 1960.

He described it as "an insult" and told a television news conference made up of four British and Australian foreign correspondents he had told President John F. Kennedy "you can keep it."

He said he would not allow American bases in Singapore.

even if the U.S. were fighting in Malaysia.

"I don't mind if America pays Britain to stay here, or pays Australia and New Zealand if Britain pulls out," he said.

"But I'm not prepared to go on with the Americans. They lack depth and judgment, they don't understand the overseas Chinese, and they don't understand the Vietnamese. That is why Viet Nam is in such a mess."

FORMER PREMIER BURIED

BEIRUT (AP)—A state funeral was held in Baghdad Monday for former Iraqi premier Hashid Ali Al Gailani, the nationalist leader who staged a pro-Nazi revolt against the British in Iraq in 1941. Gailani, 72, died Saturday.

Valley Lawyer Killed

HOPE (CP)—Penticton lawyer Harry H. Boyle, 55, was killed Monday in a car accident seven miles east of here on the Hope-Penticton Highway.

Mr. Boyle's wife, Constance, 53, was reported in satisfactory condition with chest injuries at Hope General Hospital this morning. Officials said there had been a "marked improvement" in her condition since being admitted.

Police said Mr. Boyle's car struck a rock embankment when he attempted to turn back into his lane after passing a truck.

Mr. Boyle was the father of Harry Boyle, editor of the Prince George Citizen. A second son, Drayton, is an instructor in mathematics and physics at the University of Alberta in Calgary.

Big Bombers Pound Reds

SAIGON (AP)—Strategic Air Command B-52 bombers from Guam hit two suspected Viet Cong concentrations tonight in South Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said.

One strike by the huge eight-engine planes was made on Quang Tin province, 320 miles northeast of Saigon. The other was carried out in the Communist stronghold called zone-D, 20 miles north of the capital in Binh Hoa province.

The raids were the 15th and 16th made by B-52s in the Vietnamese war. The same areas were hit by SAC bombers last weekend. It was disclosed Monday that the role of the B-52s would be stepped up sharply.

In another development, a government unit clashed with Communist guerrillas 175 miles northeast of Saigon in Dar Lac province, the spokesman said. Ten Viet Cong were reported killed and two captured in the action, 20 miles east of Ban Mo Thuot. No Vietnamese casualties were reported.

Dominicans' Hope Rises

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters)—The end of the four-month Dominican Republic crisis seemed closer today following the surprise resignation Monday night of Gen. Antonio Domínguez, "national reconstruction" government.

Imbert, 44, one of the two surviving assassins of Dictator Rafael Trujillo, and the four other members of the civilian-military junta signed their resignations during a television broadcast.

Meanwhile, Ellsworth Bunker U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, said the OAS peace mission would probably meet today with Col. Francisco Caamaño's "constitutional" government, the Imbert regime's rival.

News of the junta's move was received with mixed feelings in the Caamaño forces' sector, where the radio station warned troops to remain on the alert: "until the motives for the resignations are known."

Two Survive B.C. Air Crash

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—Two men were rescued early today after spending the night on a mountain side where their helicopter crashed late Monday.

RCAF officials said the helicopter pilot was Leo Lannon of Vancouver but his passenger was not identified.

Neither man was believed injured.

Lenin's commercial helicopter crashed at the 6,000 foot level of Dutchman's Mountain, 65 miles east of this Cariboo town. The men were picked up by RCAF helicopter and flown to Prince George.

The rescue helicopter was to return to the mountain at dawn.

A single-engine aircraft crashed in a field two miles east of Chilliwack in the Fraser Valley, injuring pilot Herbert Schuppert of Burnaby.

He was in good condition in hospital.

Police said the aircraft had been towing a glider from Hope to Pitt Meadows. The pilot apparently cut the glider loose and the aircraft nose-dived to the ground.

The glider landed without mishap.

Operating Loss For CN In July

MONTREAL (CP)—The CN reported today net railway operating loss of $210,000 for the month of July compared to a net operating income of $512,000 for the corresponding month in 1964.

Non-Ops Aiming At Big Pay Hike

Killer Glacier Entombs 99

SAAS FEE (AP)—Helicopters dragged explosives on the Alaskan glacier today after rescuee, imperiled by a new ice fall, halted operations at the site of the Matmark avalanche disaster in which 99 men were trapped.

Sirens wailed over the valley where one of the largest ice fields in the Alps tumbled down on a hydroelectric construction site Monday night.

Rescuers feared the glacier threatened a new fall and decided to blast away its most dangerous parts from the air.

According to the latest reports, six bodies have been recovered from under a three-layer of ice blocks. A total of 53 more workers—mainly Italian—are missing.

"If they were not killed on the spot, they would have frozen to death during the night," a spokesman told reporters.

More than 1,000 rescue workers evacuated the disaster scene after the Alaskan Glacier began cracking shortly after dawn.

A dull rumbling sound swept through the valley. Waiting parents bounded.

The giant glacier split Monday and sent millions of tons of ice and rocks crashing down on the power project site.

With the threatened new ice fall, rescue workers scurried from the danger zone. They had made little headway backing at the icy debris despite an all-night effort, during which they recovered only six bodies.

"There's no hope for the men under that mass," said one rescue worker. In some places, the ice and rocks lay more than 100 feet deep.

The avalanche struck near Saas Fee, a ski resort in southern Switzerland less than five miles from the Italian border.

The mass buried men, machines and barracks at the Matmark power project near the resort.

Raise Of 40 Cents An Hour "Or More" To Be New Target

OTTAWA (CP)—Fifteen unions representing 100,000 non-operating railway workers are reported to be under heavy pressure from their rank-and-file membership to mount a massive wage demand on the railways this fall.

The current two-year contract expires Dec. 31 and the individual unions now are preparing the groundwork for the demands they will present jointly to the first bargaining session with the railways, probably in mid-November.

One informant close to the situation says the unions probably will bid for a pay increase of 40 cents an hour, "and don't be too surprised if it is even higher."

This would mean discarding the durable goods yardstick that the unions have clung to for the last 15 years. Under it, wage demands were tied to average earnings in the durable goods manufacturing industries—appliances, autos and such.

The so-called "non-ops" are those railway workers who do not actually operate the trains—telegraphers, shop workers, track crews, signalmen, porters, clerks and others.

AVERAGE $2.20

Average wage of the non-ops now is about $2.20 an hour. The most recent figure available in the durable goods industries is for May, when it was $2.29 an hour.

Workers Feel They're Left Behind By Hefty Raises In Other Industries

Pressure on union leaders to go for more than the durable goods figure is reported to be mounting among railway workers in high-cost cities such as Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. They feel they have been left far behind by the hefty wage increases won by other industrial unions in the last 18 months and are demanding vigorous action to close the gap.

Most of the major unions involved in non-ops bargaining are faced with meetings early this fall in which local chairmen are expected to give voice to this grass-roots pressure. Union leaders may be in a difficult spot if they attempt to resist.

Johnson Grips Steel Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson keeps a firm hand on steel labor negotiations today after winning eight days of grace from a scheduled strike he said would endanger United States economic and military strength.

Talks resume today between the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers Union and 10 major firms that produce 80 per cent of the steel made in the U.S.

"They (negotiations) will continue, hopefully, until a settlement is reached," said White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers.

Two years ago, when the non-ops last bargained with the railways, they sought a parity with durable goods. A conciliation board recommended a boost of 19.1 cents which was accepted by the unions and rejected by the railways. A strike was called and the federal government pressured the railways into accepting the 19.1-cent figure, promising to consider a subsidy if it pushed their wage cuts out of line.

So far the government has not made good on the subsidy pledge although the CPR and CNR have asked for more than $50,000,000 to cover the costs of the wage increase.

It is virtually certain that the big railways will reject any demand the unions make this time. Their freight rates have been frozen by federal order since 1959 and they will again argue they have no way of raising the extra money.

Soviet Makes Rejection Formal On Plan To Curb Nuclear Tide

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union formally rejected today the U.S. proposal for a treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin told the 17-nation disarmament conference no such treaty can ever be concluded unless it bars West Germany from any direct or indirect access to nuclear weapons.

He described West German "revenge-seeking militarism" as the greatest danger to world security and declared that the Western powers are pretending to seek a halt to the spread of nuclear weapons while plotting to give access to such weapons to the "West German militarists."

A large part of Tsarapkin's hour-long speech was devoted to one of the bitterest slaughters against West Germany he has yet delivered in the conference.

Tsarapkin also accused the United States and Britain of dragging their heels on all aspects of disarmament, of automatically rejecting "reasonable" Soviet proposals while deliberately putting forward suggestions which they knew in advance to be unacceptable to Russia.

One such suggestion, he said, was the draft treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons placed before the conference Aug. 17 by chief U.S. negotiator William C. Foster.

Foster proposed a detailed draft under which all nuclear powers would promise never to provide non-nuclear nations with nuclear weapons or nuclear know-how, while the non-nuclear nations would promise not to acquire such weapons.

Space Twins Munch Away

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad, quickly regaining the weight they lost during an epic eight days in space, huddled today with technical and medical experts who sought to learn everything possible about the flight of Gemini 5.

Meanwhile, two other astronauts, Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford, were busy preparing for Gemini 6, less than two months away.

Cooper and Conrad flew here Monday from the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain, on which they had landed by helicopter after splashing into the Atlantic Sunday at the end of their record mission.

The astronauts immediately were hustled to a medical centre for exhaustive tests which did not disclose any adverse symptoms.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, reported the pilots were in extremely good physical condition. But he said examinations would continue for weeks in case something shows up later.

Berry said Cooper had gained back six of the 7½ pounds he lost during the flight and Conrad, four of the 8½ he lost. Cooper weighed 152 and Conrad 154 just before launching. Berry attributed the loss to dehydration.

Medical and technical reviews will continue at Cape Kennedy until Thursday, when Cooper and Conrad will fly to the Manned Spacecraft Centre at Houston, Tex., for seven more days of the same.

The space agency has placed Cooper and Conrad in seclusion for 11 days. But there's a chance they might meet their families briefly when they fly into Houston Thursday.

Schirra and Stafford planned today to climb into their spacecraft and "get acquainted" with the Agena satellite which they will try to catch and hook up with on their flight.

The Titan II booster rocket for the Gemini 6 flight, scheduled Oct. 25, was erected on a Cape Kennedy launching pad Monday. The spacecraft will be joined with it in a week or so.

NON STOP STUDENT NEVER RESTS

Two weeks ago a smiling Judy Cavani was on a train bound for Montreal, one of 24 students who were visiting French Canada as part of the centennial exchange program. She was elated, and planned to see every possible section of Montreal. In addition, she promised to send letters back to the Courier of her impressions of Canada. This she did faithfully, and during the weekend she came back to Kelowna—and home. But she didn't. Not the impression-

Area Students Praise Montreal Hospitality

A happy, smiling group of area students returned to their homes after the weekend after a 14-day trip to Montreal as part of the centennial exchange program.

Most agreed they were "sold" on the French Canadian hospitality, and all said it was a "shopping spree."

"It's just immense," said Janice Thorburn, of 1250 Kellogg Cr., who admitted to a wonderful time, despite boarding the wrong train one day.

"What impressed me most," commented Linda Williams, "was the people. They were wonderful."

"I stayed with a family who spoke very little English but by the end of the visit, we were all talking at one another in French."

Judy Cavani, of 810 Fuller Ave., who made the trip as a student and at the same time, sent the Courier her impressions of the trip. She had nothing but praise for French Canada.

"I can converse fairly well in

Cleanup Chores Start At Arena

Cleanup and paint-up will continue with vacation time for the next few weeks in the arena, Gordon Smith parks and recreation board chairman, said today.

After the completion of the summer skating school, the board staff and volunteers started mechanical repairs and a general painting of the premises.

Between skating holidays, the staff and volunteers will be working on the arena, Mr. Smith said, and a new ice surface will be laid on Oct. 26, and then taken out Oct. 27-28, for the annual Grape Festival and a volleyball game.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

and retreat parties at the city flagpole during the week of 1967. The ceremony will be held by British Columbia Dragoons, the Sea Cadets, Army Cadets and Air Cadets. The official celebration week is June 25 to July 1.

Mayor Parkinson asked members of council to be prepared to attend the Public Utilities Commission hearing Thursday on the question of supplying water to an area south of the city demanded by Townhouse Developments and Maurice Meikle.

Ald. A. Roy Pollard asked council who was in charge of the small park on Flintham Ave., where he said residents of the area had been complaining of lack of supervision and of youths playing on the trampolines late at night. Mayor Parkinson said he would ask the Parks and Recreation Commission at their Wednesday meeting, who was supposed to look after that park.

Ald. Thomas Angus was appointed acting mayor for the month of September. The acting mayor is appointed to take over for the mayor when the latter cannot attend official functions.

Mayor Parkinson said he had received a number of complaints recently about the lack of public restrooms in the city. He said they might be incorporated into plans for the extension to city hall and asked Ald. L. A. N. Potterton, chairman of the Union Board of Health to look into the matter.

Council authorized the appointment of James C. Elder, 681 Burne Ave., to the permanent city clerk position following two years of employment.

Mayor Parkinson, Ald. Jack Bedford, Ald. A. Roy Pollard, Ald. L. A. N. Potterton, Ald. E. R. Winter and city clerk James Hudson were named official voters to congratulate them on their proposed parade of floats that will be staged Sept. 18 to Oct. 2 B.C. Mayor Parkinson has called a meeting of city officials and city staff to meet department of highways officials Wednesday. The department has a firm plan now for the changes to be made

BUDDHISTS PLAN NEW CITY CHURCH

Deciding their present building is outmoded and facilities incomplete, the Kelowna Buddhist church have set up a committee to make plans for a new temple.

"Everything is still in the planning stage," said Kaz Hayashi, chairman of the committee, "but the architect has shown us a sketch and a model. We want something unique and we are very pleased with his ideas."

"The present building is 40 years old," said Rev. Koyo Okuda, who has been with the Kelowna church since 1953. "It has no facilities and no room for the children. We have Sunday school every week, and the adults meet every second Sunday at 7:30 p.m."

The Kelowna Buddhist church has 19 members from various Japanese families in the area.

The building committee, in charge of plans and financing, expects work to start in the spring of 1968.

The new church will be built on the present site at the corner of Borden Avenue and Glenmore Road. A two-story building will be erected to hold 200 worshippers at a cost of $50,000.

Skaters Open Coach Clinic

As a part of their physical fitness plan, the Canadian Figure Skating Association is holding coaching clinics at various places across Canada, and 30 skaters from various B.C. clubs will attend the two-day clinic at the Kelowna arena Wednesday and Thursday, Dr. Mel Butler said today.

"The association has set aside $25,000 to promote physical fitness through skating," he said.

To attend the coaching clinic a skater must be 14 years of age. As the senior skaters of their different clubs, they will take lessons both on and off the ice from Guy Nick of Vancouver.

After a series of tests they will be qualified as amateur coaches, said Dr. Butler, training director of the clinic.

It Was Big Night For the Kelly's

Mayor R. F. Parkinson at city council Monday night paid tribute to Staff Sgt. T. J. Kelly, MCO in charge of the Kelowna RCMP Detachment who is leaving for a Prince George post.

"Staff Kelly has been in Kelowna since January 9, 1963," said the mayor, "and everyone on council and the whole city staff agrees he has been most cooperative and efficient."

"He is a quiet man who methodically goes about his business and does everything he can to serve the community."

"You can talk to him about police matters at any time and he gives his fullest attention to our every problem."

"We are most sorry to see him transferred and only hope it is a promotion for him," he said.

An official letter will be sent from council to his superiors in appreciation of Staff Kelly's work.

DINNER HELD

A smorgasbord dinner was held at Staff Kelly's home on Monday at the Capri Motor Inn.

The army, the city council, the fire department and barbers from the city were all represented at the gathering, along with dignitaries and fellow members of the RCMP.

One of the highlights of the evening was when Cpl. A. W. Wiershow read a 10 stanza poem written by an anonymous member of the Kelowna force, summing up Kelly's work in Kelowna.

The sergeant was presented with a desk set on behalf of the Kelowna detachment.

Mr. Kelly was not forgotten during the activities, and the Mayor presented her with a cup and saucer on behalf of the wives of the men in the Kelowna RCMP.

Larry Preston, of the auxiliary police force, which was formed since Sgt. Kelly came to Kelowna, presented him with an engraved tray, as a token of their appreciation.

"Due to Staff Kelly's guidance," he said, "the Kelowna auxiliary force is one of the most efficient in B.C."

Staff Kelly expressed his deep appreciation of everything which had been done for him since he came to Kelowna.

"I have enjoyed my stay immensely," he said, "and would like to express my gratitude to the men who worked under me for their cooperation and intense devotion to their duty."

"I lived in the north previous to coming to Kelowna, and I don't think we will have too much trouble learning to keep warm again."

Staff Sergeant Kelly, who has been in Kelowna almost two years, is being transferred to Prince George, and will be replaced in Kelowna by Staff Sergeant G. A. Phillips, of the Kamloops detachment, who is expected to arrive today.

May Follow Penticton Plan Of Householders Mail List

Kelowna is going to follow Penticton's lead in an effort to have more eligible voters placed on the city voters' list.

Ald. L. A. N. Potterton, at before September 30, could city council, reported on the fact Penticton is now sending names put on the voters' list, out letters to each household explaining who can vote and automatically on the list, those asking them to come to city hall and register.

Mayor Parkinson told council the same time but asked the city clerk to check into the Penticton letter to see if it could be used also.

"Penticton feels it can add 1,000 to its voters' list," said Ald. Potterton, "and I am sure we could do the same thing."

Ald. E. R. Winter said he was sure too few people knew that many other important matters people living in Kelowna with-out owning property could vote on.

City Clerk James Hudson said anyone who lived here six months prior to taking the declaration, and that must be come to city hall and have their names put on the voters' list. Those who own property are automatically on the list, those asking them to come to city hall and register.

Mayor Parkinson told council the same time but asked the city clerk to check into the Penticton letter to see if it could be used also.

"Penticton feels it can add 1,000 to its voters' list," said Ald. Potterton, "and I am sure we could do the same thing."

Ald. E. R. Winter said he was sure too few people knew that many other important matters people living in Kelowna with-out owning property could vote on.

Annual Holiday Horse Show Looms Equine Event Of Year

The 17th Annual Horse Show and Gymkhana will be the largest in history, T. R. Carter of the Kelowna riding club said today.

The show, sponsored by the Kelowna Lions Club, will be held every Labor Day weekend at the Kelowna riding club grounds on Gordon Road.

Already, 192 entries have been received and more are expected right up until the last minute, Sept. 4 when the show opens. It will be held Sept. 4, 5 and 6. The greatest previous number of entries was 160.

The total of 58 classes are all well filled, said Mr. Carter. Entries are from as far away as Williams Lake.

Featured in the show will be "Valley Cliff", the 1964 Horse of the Year.

HORSE OF YEAR

Valley Cliff, owned by F. W. La Londe of Vernon was also the 1963 horse of the year. An all-around horse, he can enter, and win a great many classes and has won the aggregate for both those years.

He is usually ridden by Jay La Londe, president of the Okanagan Light Horse Improvement and Show Association.

He will be featured in this year's gymkhana which is the final show of the year for the association. At this show the aggregate championships for for shows in Oliver, Penticton, Summerland, Kelowna, Vernon, Kamloops and the Armstrong-Enderby club will be decided.

The Kelowna riding club held its show in June this year. An innovation in the harness pony race which promises to be a colorful spectator event. Small Welsh and Shetland ponies will be hitched to two or four wheeled buggies—or as the entry sheet said, "any suitable vehicle."

They will be held Monday morning.

TENT PEGGING

Also Monday are the barrel races and the old favorite, tent pegging competition. Pegging a great deal of skill, the tent pegging event demands that the rider spear a wooden peg with a lance. It is quite difficult for a member of the four-horse team, riding at a gallop, to pierce the four inch peg.

Although these events as well as the breeding races, costume classes and the official opening are held Monday, the actual show gets under way two days earlier.

Saturday at 1 p.m. will be held events for children 16 and under, in equitation, back, western pleasure and working barrel classes.

BREED CLASSES

On Sunday the breed classes will be judged. These include Palominos, Morgans, Appaloosas, Thoroughbreds, Quarter horses and Arabians.

The performance classes Sunday will include hack, jumper, dress, junior working stock and senior equitation.

Monday morning judging will be in matched pairs, western stock horses and pairs jumping classes.

Alderman Thomas Angus will officially open the show Monday at 1:15 p.m. Judging the show will be Jim Wyatt of High River, Alberta.

Kelowna General Hospital has seen a definite drop in the number of patients admitted this year compared with 1964.

In July, 1964, 481 adults and children were admitted, compared with only 437 in July, 1965. This year to date only 3,078 patients were admitted, while 3,090 were admitted in 1964.

The average number of days stayed has remained the same, with average of 8.9 for the seven month period both years.

Births have dropped from 362 in 1964 to 336 this year, with July down to 39 from 64.

However, the number of out-patients has taken a sharp rise, with 4,518 this year and only 2,942 in 1964. July has gone up to 781 from only 506 in 1964.

No Valid Reasons For An Election This Fall

Although no one seems to want one, the general opinion now seems to be that we will have a general election this fall. This impression was built up during Prime Minister Pearson's visit to B.C. and Alberta last week. During his trip Mr. Pearson, without committing himself, did appear to infer an election would be held. He said he would make a statement within two weeks whether or not there would be an election.

The Canada Elections Act requires that voting be on a Monday unless that day happens to be a public holiday or a day generally observed in any province for religious exercises and declared a holiday by provincial law. In such a case voting day is on the Tuesday.

As of now, Mr. Pearson could call an election for Tuesday, November 2nd, before or on September 4th. Monday, November 1, is All Saints Day, and is considered a public holiday in Quebec.

Up to September 11 a general election could be announced for November 8 and up to September 18 we could have an election on November 15th. There is no real reason why a later date could not be used, but this is generally avoided because of the possibility of bad weather. Only two of Canada's 26 general elections since Confederation have been held in November: in 1900 on November 7th and in 1904 on November 3rd.

In viewing the prospect of an election—and this newspaper views it with distaste—it is important to define the public interest as opposed to the party interest. The two are certainly not synonymous.

What's good for the Liberals is not necessarily good for the country and an election is a case in point. From a narrow political standpoint the Liberals have much to gain. The Conservative party is in disarray. With the inducements of medicare, a pension plan, the development corporation, the poverty war, and general economic prosperity, the party has the makings of a politically serviceable election platform.

If party advantage were the sole criterion in these matters, there could only be one answer—call an election. There is another criterion, however, and the fact that it is forgotten in Ottawa makes it no less valid. It is the standard of what is best for the country.

Certain constitutional niceties ought to be observed to begin with. Although he has a minority government, Mr. Pearson has not been defeated in Parliament; nor is he likely to be.

He does not have the excuse of being "unable to carry on." Nor has he unannounced any new or sweeping programs which necessitate a renewed mandate. If he does postulate something between now and November it should be recognized as a fraudulent excuse, window dressing to cover the need for a plausible reason.

The country is weary of elections. We had one in 1962 and again in 1963. In the absence of anything other than the good fortune of one political organization, people do not want to go through it all again.

Redistribution constitutes perhaps the biggest single obstacle to an election now, although Mr. Pearson is using it as an excuse for an election now. It will not be completed till next year. The present Parliament is grossly unrepresentative, based as it is on an election map which dates from 1951. A successful election now would delay until 1969 implementation of the 1961 pattern. It would mean nearly 20 years of gross inequities caused by ridings ranging in size from 12,000 to 200,000 people.

Unhappily the country does not have a viable political alternative to the Liberals. Conservative leader John Diefenbaker is under strong attack from within his own party, and for the moment the party appears to have lost its bearings and its policies. This is good for the Liberals; not good for the country.

Mid-term elections should be called for more noble reasons than successful political organization or the desire of some MPs to retain seats that will be reelected by redistribution.

In 1963 the Liberals were elected for five years. That was the job they asked for and that was the job they got. It is true that the party does not control the House of Commons, but until its minority position prevents it from achieving its major goals (and this has not happened thus far) there is no excuse for dissolution.

Mr. Pearson knows the rules. He should play by them.

Maoris Of New Zealand Now Subject Of Racial Anomaly

WELLINGTON (CP) — At a time when the trend all over the world is to closer integration of races, the New Zealand parliament presents an anomaly.

The Maoris of New Zealand are among the most advanced and best integrated of native races in Western civilization. Yet they retain separate representation in parliament. And parliament has been debating a move not only to retain the system, but even to extend it.

The Maoris are represented in the House of Representatives by 16 members by four Maori MPs, elected on a separate roll. The Maori MPs, supported by the opposition Labour party, have been demanding that a fifth Maori seat be added, because the Maoris are increasing in numbers more rapidly than the white population.

The government response has been that, far from representing the system of separate representation, all Maori seats should be abolished and the whole population should vote on a common roll. However, the government has indicated that it would not take such an initiative without a clear mandate from the Maori people.

At present, and for a long time past, all four Maori seats have been held by the Labour party. Government speakers have been quick to claim that this is the reason Labour supports proposals for a fifth Maori seat.

MAORIS DIVIDED
The Maoris themselves are divided on the question, but many of them maintain that the race still needs its own spokesman in parliament to safeguard specific Maori interests.

Attacking suggestions that the Maori seats should be abolished, a leading member of the Labour party, N. E. Kirk, said in parliament that the government wanted to mimic the policy of the nationalist government in South Africa. There the only people who represented colored people were whites. Opinions on this point vary. Some people maintain that just as many Maoris as at present would get into parliament on a common roll. Others claim the rare would critically lack spokesmen in parliament.

One outstanding case has occurred where a distinguished Maori, Sir James Carroll, represented a white constituency in parliament for many years. Citizens with some degrees of Maori blood can choose whether to register on the white or Maori roll. At the last election three part-Maoris ran for white seats. None was elected, but one came close to success.

Supporters of the idea of a common roll say that once white constituencies show their willingness to elect Maoris, or part Maoris, the movement for abolition of the special Maori seats will gather momentum. In local - body politics large numbers of Maoris are elected to borough and city councils on common rolls.

SYSTEM ATTACKED
Meanwhile, Attorney-General J. R. Hanan has castigated the present system as "simple apartheid." Attacking in parliament the proposal for a fifth Maori seat, he made a call instead for the fixing of a clear timetable to abolish separate representation.

"We have now reached the stage when a time should be fixed, say 10 years hence, for abolition," he said. "Should this take place, I assert that there would be more members of this House with some Maori blood than there are today."

Hanan warned that the time would come when the United Nations would indicate that electoral segregation by separate representation was incompatible with the concept of an integrated society.

There are many other reasons. The government has declined to accept the idea of a fifth Maori seat. But it is taking no active steps on Hanan's suggestion for a timetable for abolition.

Indications are that no government is likely to pursue the matter until there are stronger demands from the Maoris themselves for a common roll. So far the Maoris are not supporting in substantial numbers the claim that the separate roll is a form of racial discrimination.

Iran And Russia Get On Better

TEHRAN (Reuters)—Iran and its powerful northern neighbor, the Soviet Union, are on the threshold of a new era of more intensive contacts and increased friendly ties.

Relations between Iran and the Soviet Union, which have a 1,150-mile common frontier, have probably never been so good as now.

The two countries are working for considerable development and expansion of trade, economic, technical, scientific and cultural co-operation "beneficial to both nations."

Ties have been greatly strengthened by the state visit to the Soviet Union by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and Empress Farah in July and the Shah's long talks with Kromlin leaders.

For its long-range political significance, the Shah's visit to Moscow may well go down in history as marking the beginning of a new era in Iranian-Soviet relations.

OTTAWA REPORT

Wolves, Apples Plague Rockies

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

"Three nice young girls, with summer jobs at Banff, could find no place to sleep except a cabin with canvas walls. One night some wolf broke in, and the girls laid charges with the Mounties. I guess the parties really are just for the wolves and coyotes, whether human or animal."

That comment by a voluntary social worker in our recent Banff-Jasper tourist mecca is typical of stories which show our Rocky Mountain Garden of Eden to be only as ugly dump of rotten apples.

The worst of these rotten apples is the sub-standard and insufficient accommodation available to students and others who are enticed to take summer jobs catering to the tourists. With 25,000 tourists per night crowding into a townsite such as Banff, whose permanent population is only 3,500, naturally the demand swamps the supply—and the stage is set for fancy prices. A local saying is: "Give a Banff householder an inch—and he will rent it to a tourist."

PRICES SOAR
One year-round worker at Banff described to me that she paid $60 per month for her accommodation through 10 months of the year—but she was forced to move out when the price was sky-rocketed to $11 per night in the short tourist season. It is an inescapable economic fact that the shortage of the season forces operators to charge high prices and pay low wages. This students paid $300 per month as casual workers cannot compete with free-loading tourists for even the modest $5-per-night rooms.

"Keep your nice young daughters at home" is the gist of the advice tendered to parents of eager students by Rev. Paul O'Byrne, a member of the local welfare board. "Even if it's a dog house with dogs, the low-paid summer workers must be thankful for it." Another social worker comments: "Some have to sleep in double beds with complete strangers—the conditions are like those I found in wartime army transit camps, which is absolutely unnecessary and stupid."

Along with these stories, and many written protests, authorized delegations have been storming Parliament Hill. The Banff and Jasper National Parks have been hitting the headlines basically because of the government's "Park leasing policy" and proposed changes.

BOOM AND BUST
Northern Affairs Minister Art Laming, who is responsible for these government-owned parks, has inherited an inefficient and outmoded lands policy which is at the root of the trouble. The town sites in the parks are not sold by the government, but individual lots are leased to people who wish to build private homes, motels, gas stations and so on.

Mr. Laming has publicly objected to the fact that some leaseholders have made large profits by selling their leases, and he has cited one alleged case of land, leased from the government for $25 per year, fetching $127,000 for the lease.

To halt this kind of speculation, Mr. Laming now proposes that leases for land for private homes shall be limited to 45 years, while for commercial sites the leases will be shorter. The tourist operator who plans to build a motel will be expected to recover his capital cost out of his profits in that shorter period. This obviously will lead to sky-high prices being charged for motel rooms, prices which could effectively kill the tourist industry which draws something around 4,000,000 visitors to our Rocky Mountain Parks each year—largely because of advertising paid for by the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

Mr. Laming says that the leases are based on land values which have not been changed for 77 years. It should not be hard to revise these in a reasonable but yet fair-to-all manner.

Saigon Cowboys Keep Out Of War

SAIGON (Reuters)—Lounging in fashionable cafes, or speeding around the city on motorcycles, Saigon's young Cowboys seem out of place in South Viet Nam, a country that has been wracked by war and violence for 20 years.

Tight - trousersed, languid young men, they idle their days without aim or occupation. Some are the children of wealthy and indulgent parents. Others are perennial "students." Many are youths with no apparent means of support.

Called Cowboys by the Saigonese, the young men have one object in common: To avoid the military draft. In war - weary South Viet Nam, dodging the draft has become an art with ever-increasing refinements.

But draft-dodging will become more difficult now that War Minister Brig. - Gen. Nguyen Huu Co has ordered the mobilization of all men and women of military age in a reserve army. The order applies to men 18 to 45 and women 20 to 25.

USE BRIBERY
Bribery, forged medical certificates, false identity cards and failed examinations are all used to keep one step ahead of the army.

To avoid the draft in the countryside is difficult, and there is the added hazard of forced enrolment in the Communist Viet Cong forces. Therefore many youths flee to the crowded cities where induction of draftees is slowed down by the bureaucratic tangle.

But even in the cities there is always the danger of sudden arrest by military police followed by swift, ignominious dispatch to a military training camp.

The prudent young call - up dodger, therefore, equips himself with one or more of the following:
1. An exemption or deferment, bought from a provincial or district chief. Prices of these are said to run as much as 100,000 piasters, $1,300 at the official rate.

2. A medical certificate of disability, which can be bought from certain doctors, or a forged certificate.

FAIL EXAMS
Another favored method of dodging the call-up is to fail examinations. Every South Vietnamese needs a junior or senior diploma to get a good job.

University students can obtain deferment until they graduate, but since employers are reluctant to engage them until they have completed their military service, the temptation to remain in "permanent" undergraduates is strong.

The call-up is confined to the army. Air force and militia units are filled by recruiting. In theory all conscripts serve three years in practice it is often much longer and sometimes even double.

To most Cowboys, dodging the call-up is no cause for shame. "Why get killed for the American?" said one. "Who knows what will happen in Viet Nam in the next few years?"

Big Tunnel Plan For Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP)—A harbor tunnel almost a mile long will give automobiles four-lane access to Hong Kong under plans announced recently. It will cost $20,000,000, with $5,000,000 more for access roads and other construction.

A tunnel connecting Hong Kong Island with Kowloon peninsula, on the tip of the China mainland, has been a subject of heated controversy in this British colony for years.

The government approved the franchise after bitter debate in Hong Kong's legislative council. The tunnel will cross from Hong Kong Island's jam-packed Chinese area of Wanchai to a relatively open area halfway between Kowloon's business section and Kai Tak airport.

First World War
Fifty years ago today—in 1915—it was announced there were 21,581 Canadian soldiers in France, 48,195 in England and 61,777 in Canada; Russian forces counter-attacked in Galicia with some success, capturing 3,000 German soldiers and 30 guns.

Second World War
Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—the British African House of Assembly voted 83-65 against making peace with the Axis; the RAF claimed 85 German aircraft shot down for 37 fighters lost and 12 pilots killed; it was reported that Manila had made available air and army bases to Germany; the loss of HMS Dunvegan Castle, an armed merchant cruiser, was announced.

Those Cats Of Prescott

(Kelowna Whistler Standard)

Cats eating flowers? Cats dragging off a two-foot alligator? Cats holding a community meeting in a basement? Cats building nests in hedges to hold litters of kittens? It all sounds a bit fishy to us, but all of these things are said to have happened in Prescott since the town council passed a bylaw prohibiting dogs from running at large.

One man complained that he caught a large, white, one-eared, battle-scarred tom munching contentedly on his prize delphiniums. Another protested that 15 cats, after tearing the screen off a window, held a howling, shrieking meeting in his basement in the dead of night.

In another case a cat had torn a hole in the foliage of a carefully tended hedge, built a nest and had her litter of all four kittens in privacy. As for the alligator episode—said to have had such a reputation for fierceness that it could only be handled by persons wearing heavy gloves—the reptile was allegedly plucked out of its enclosure by several cats.

We should imagine that the complaints are coming from those dog-owners who are miffed at the new by-law restricting the movements and activities of their pets. They infer, of course, that all dogs are now off the streets and cats running wild without fear of pursuit.

There is much about this little summer-time tale that we find hard to swallow. But most of all we question the claim that the "dogs are gone" from the streets of Prescott. For if that were true, the town of Prescott would surely be the only community ever to enjoy complete success with its dogs-at-large bylaw.

It all sounds to us like the campaigning of cat-haters.

'Flu Shots Time Comes Round Again

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Flu outbreaks, in a way are like tornadoes. We can't tell positively when they will strike, but we can, by dint of a lot of study, figure out when they MIGHT occur.

The U.S. Public Health Service issued a warning recently that the coming winter may bring a bit of flu. By quite a bit, I mean, and so does the USPHS, that no epidemic is likely. But conditions are right for flu.

However, they aren't the same everywhere. In places which had a lot of flu last winter, there is no expectation of more this year. Flu runs in cycles. It hits. People get it, and then develop temporary immunity. As the immunity wears off, we have to look for a new outbreak.

Flu isn't like smallpox. It isn't that deadly. Neither does it build such long-lasting immunity among those who have it, but recover. Instead, flu doesn't strike as dangerously, but it strikes oftened, in the long run flu claims many lives. It has more chances to attack each of us.

So we have good reason to do what we can to avoid it. And that is what the USPHS warning tells us.

What to do about it? Have a vaccination. Or have two, depending on whether you had one last year.

Those who especially should have flu shots are those who are in rather feeble health already, the older folks, or those with chronic ailments, particularly heart, lung or respiratory, since an attack of flu is more dangerous for them. Pregnant women should have them. So should people whose professions are important to society—nurses, policemen, doctors, key executives and others whose temporary absence because of flu might be costly to the community.

If you have not had a flu vaccination within the last year or so (since July, 1963, the Health Service suggests)—you should now have two shots of flu vaccine.

Have the first one in this month and the second one about 60 days later.

Those who DID have shots
